After untold trials and tribulations, the first volume of Annelise's manga series is finally hitting bookstores! Sadly, manga often has a way of not selling the way you want it to -- and as if that didn't damage her armor enough, her mom's threatening to "punish" her unless she's a full-fledged A-list artist! Facing mortal danger, the only-slightly-less-serious threat of series cancellation, and a small horde of combative editors and artists around her, this final volume features all the agonies of a comic-centric life rolled into one! You are invited to the rest of your life. Three women, from coast to coast and in between, open their mailboxes to the same intriguing invitation. Although leading entirely different lives, each has found herself at a similar, jarring crossroads. Right when these women thought they'd be comfortably settling into middle age, their carefully curated futures have turned out to be dead ends. The sender of the invitation is Willa Silvester, who is reeling from the untimely death of her* beloved husband and the reality that she must say goodbye to the small mountain town they founded together. Yet as Willa mourns her losses, an impossible question keeps staring her in the face: So now what? Struggling to find the answer alone, fiercely independent Willa eventually calls a childhood friend who happens to be in her own world of hurt—and that's where the idea sparks. They decide to host a weeklong interlude from life, and invite two other friends facing their own quandaries. Soon the four women converge at Willa's Montana homestead, a place where they can learn from nature and one another as they contemplate their second acts together in the rugged wilderness of big sky country. Evocative of Alice in Wonderland, this novel from New York Times bestselling author Lauren Oliver is a bewitching story about the reaches of loyalty and the enduring power of hope. Perfect for fans of the author's other middle grade novels: Liesl & Po and the Curiosity House series. Looking across the breakfast table one morning, twelve-year-old Liza feels dread wash over her. Although her younger brother, Patrick, appears the same, Liza knows that he is actually quite different. She is certain that the spindlers—evil, spiderlike beings—came during the night and stole his soul. And Liza is also certain that she is the only one who can rescue him. Armed with little more than her wits and a huge talking rat for a guide, Liza descends into the dark and ominous underground to save Patrick's soul. Her quest is far from easy: she must brave tree-snakes, the Court of

*Stones, and shape-shifting scawgs before facing her greatest challenge in the spindlers' lair, where more than just Patrick's soul is at stake. Upon his retirement from active service as a Justice of the Supreme Court of Virginia in 2011, Justice Koontz had completed more than four decades of service to citizens of the Commonwealth of Virginia. In order to recognize that service and help preserve Justice Koontz's legacy as one of the outstanding jurists in Virginia and the United States, the Salem/Roanoke County Bar Association instituted this project to collect all of Justice Koontz's published opinions, both from his tenure as a Justice of the Supreme Court and as an inaugural member of the Court of Appeals of Virginia. This volume is dedicated to the memory of Judge Bernard G. Barrow, one of the "gang of ten" original members of the Court of Appeals. In January 1995, Judge Barrow announced his intention to retire from the Court in June of that year. Sadly, just over two month before his retirement would be come effective, Judge Barrow suffered a fatal seizure and died on

To present truly the opinions of Gerard Hallock upon the vital questions which were submitted to the arbitrament of arms in the late *war, and the course which he advised as most conducive to the public interest, Ave copy from leading editorials of the Journal of Commerce, by his own pen, beginning a short time prior to the election of President Lincoln, and extending to the full commencement of hostilities in the summer of 1861: " The Journal Of Commerce And The War.--We are not in the habit of glorifying our own acts, and have no desire to do it now. But the simultaneous effort which has been made, in this period of excitement, by the blood and thunder press, with its many tongues, to represent us as favorable to* secession, disloyal to the Union, &c, renders it proper, as we think, to show by documentary evidence, i. e., by extracts from our own columns, what has been the course of the Journal of Commerce during the momentous period that has elapsed since the date of our last Presidential election. These extracts, extending to several columns, and covering a period of more than six months, are conclusive against every count of the indictment aforesaid. But we shall not be satisfied with a mere verdict of acquittal; on the contrary, the extracts prove that while many of our cotemporaries contended, prior and immediately subsequent to the Presidential election, that the threats of secession on the part of South Carolina and other States were a mere sham, got up for effect, an old story a thousand times repeated; that you 'could not kick them out of the Union, ' &c, the Journal of Commerce comprehended the extent of the danger, and sought to avert it: 1. By endeavoring to prevent the election of Lincoln. 2. By...
