Her method, both on TV and in this book, is simple yet powerful: the key is saving just $10 a day that you currently waste. It doesn't sound like much—a movie ticket or lunch for two at McDonald's— but $10 really can take you from debt to wealth in just a few years. And because it doesn't feel like an impossible goal, people are more likely to stick with Chatzky's plan than an extreme regimen of spending cutbacks. Chatzky is focusing on debt because it's the single biggest threat to our financial health. The average American family has sixteen credit cards and high-rate debt of more than $8000, not even counting car loans and mortgages. They pay more than $1000 a year in interest alone. Debt makes people feel depressed and overwhelmed, leaving them without enough money for the truly important things in life—education, retirement, owning a home, feeling secure. Chatzky, one of America's most popular personal finance experts, writes in down-to-earth, woman-next-door language about how to get started right away, without giving up the things that truly give you pleasure. She offers practical, accessible strategies to help readers find the money to pay off their bills, lower their interest rates, and improve their credit scores. Excerpt from Principles of the Administration of Assets: Payment of Debts The following pages are, with various alterations and additions, the substance of one of the Courses of Lectures which, as Professor of Equity to the Council of Legal Education, I delivered to Equity Students in the year 1876. I have materially changed their form, partly because I wished to include later decisions, but chiefly because it appeared to me, that much, which would be necessary to make an oral lecture intelligible, might with propriety be curtailed or modified in a treatise intended to be read. The frequent requests which have been made to me to publish some of my lectures lead me to hope, that this short Manual may assist students in acquiring the elementary principles of one important head of Equity Jurisprudence.
