"The Pilgrim's Progress" was one of Scott's favorite books and his extensive notes are sure to help anyone understand the symbolism and nuances of the allegory. [Thomas Scott's aim is] ". . . fixing the precise meaning of those parts, which might most perplex the inquirer, and which seem to have most escaped notice, or divided the sentiments, of expositors; [and] to state and establish, compendiously but clearly, those doctrinal, practical, and experimental views of Christianity, which Mr. Bunyan meant to convey." The purpose of including the Progress Notes Planners in the PracticePlanners Series is to assist the practitioner in easily and quickly constructing progress notes that are thoroughly unified with the client's treatment plan."-- Dissatisfaction detection based on the home health caregiver's progress note draws more and more attention as a probing method, which will help lower down the turnover rate. We propose to study the detection of dissatisfaction of health caregiver as a binary classification problem (the caregiver is likely to "leave" or "stay"). In this master thesis, the real six-month data collected from two home care agencies are used. After showing the nature of the data and the preprocessing of data, three classification tasks with different sample granularity (note wise, period wise and employee wise) are designed and tackled. Different combinations of labeling hyper-parameters are tested thoroughly. Different split methods are covered to show the theoretical performance boundaries of the models. The under the ROC curve area (AUC) scores are reported to show the description ability of each model. The 6 sets of textual and statistical features' performance are compared. Lastly, the important features from the results are analyzed manually and automatically. We show that models work better on note wise and period wise than employee wise in terms of classifying the notes. The result of manual analysis shows the models capture the dissatisfaction factors, although there are quite few. The result of automatic analysis doesn't show any useful information.
