Evaluating New Income Management in the Northern Territory Apr 16 2020 This report presents the final evaluation findings of a new government income management scheme operating in the Northern Territory - New Income Management (NIM). Income management - the 'quarantining' a portion of a person's income support payment and restricting how this can be spent - was first introduced in 2007 as part of the Northern Territory Emergency Response (NTER) in Indigenous communities. In August 2010, the scheme was revised and expanded to form the NIM scheme. It features four streams, targeting long-term income support recipients of working age, vulnerable groups, people in contact with child protection authorities, and voluntary participants. The evaluation was commissioned to assess the impact of the scheme on clients, the effectiveness of the implementation, and the cost-effectiveness of the model, and to inform future policy development. The evaluation was undertaken from 2010 to 2014, with initial findings published in 2012 in the First Evaluation Report.

Final Evaluation Report on Fort Ord Project VOLAR. Jul 24 2023 This final Project VOLAR report is prepared as a data reference or data catalog rather than as a guide for imminent decision-making. In the two previous Fort Ord Project VOLAR evaluations, we have attempted to use the gathered empirical data as the basis from which to draw conclusions and proffer guidance for future program development. Primarily, this final report purports to document and record rather than to draw definitive conclusions. Information contained herein may have its greatest usefulness only at some later date, when more information may make our information more interpretable. Major findings from data presented in each of the Annexes are now summarized in turn. When the same data are presented in both tabular and chart form, the inclosure reference is to the chart only.

Final Evaluation Report for the TRICARE Senior Supplement Demonstration Program Jan 06 2022 The National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) for fiscal year 1999 directed the Secretary of Defense to establish a demonstration program, called the TRICARE Senior Supplement Demonstration (TSSD), under which eligible beneficiaries would be permitted to enroll in the Department of Defense (DOD) TRICARE health insurance program as a supplement to Medicare. Congress directed the DoD to demonstrate TSSD in two geographic areas, with enrollment beginning in March 2000 and the program ending in December 2002. The DoD was required to submit a report to Congress by December 31, 2002, evaluating TSSD and making recommendations about its suitability as a permanent national program. The DoD selected RAND to perform this evaluation and address the issues identified by Congress. This document represents RAND's final evaluation report to the DoD.

Final Evaluation Report for the TRICARE Senior Supplement Demonstration Program Jul 12 2022 The TRICARE Senior Supplement Demonstration (TSSD), conducted from March 2000 through December 2002, offers Medicare-eligible military beneficiaries the option of enrolling in TRICARE as a supplement to Medicare. This book describes RAND's evaluation of the TSSD program. Enrollment in TSSD was very low because of several factors, particularly the introduction of the permanent TRICARE for Life (TFL) that supercedes TSSD. However, implementation of TSSD as a permanent national program is feasible and would benefit many Medicare-eligible military retirees.

National Community Hubs Program SROI Evaluation Report Final Jun 23 2023 The National Community Hubs Program (NCHP) was established in 2013 to engage newly arrived communities at risk of limited access to education, health and social services, and opportunities for economic independence. At its foundation, the NCHP model is a place-based and person-centred method of connecting newly arrived families with their community, schools and existing health, education, and settlement services. Each community hub enables and facilitates access to services that build social connections and social capital within newly arrived communities. This evaluation followed the SROI framework developed as part of Phase A. A mixed-method approach was taken, combining primary and secondary data to inform the measurement of the SROI of the NCHP. Secondary data sources included activity data from CHA, CHA English census data, and desktop research using academic journals and ABS amongst other resources. Primary data was collected across the network, incorporating a participant and volunteer survey, a hub leader survey, a school principal survey as well as a support coordinator survey. Participant and volunteer surveys and consultations with 14 hub leaders were conducted for a sample of sites within the network. [Publisher summary, ed]
