Two volumes; Grade 1-6; consumable The double-entry journal strategy is easy to implement but should be used frequently to be effective. Students write in their own language about what they are learning. For teachers and students, entries influence learning by revealing problems, questions, connections, and concerns. Although it is a strategy most commonly found in language arts, social studies, science, reading, and math, students in elective classes such as "mythology and Computer sciences," "Shop," and fine arts can benefit as well. Double-entry journals serve a variety of purposes. Students record their thoughts and feelings or reactions to text excerpts or short films, online research, and/or to their own questions and areas of interest relating to the area being studied Our notebooks are preformatted with two columns already laid out with a topic and date header atop each page. The left column is labeled "From the text" as a simple prompt reminder that the left column is for referencing the page numbers and source material being studied. In the left column of the double-entry journal, students should reference vocabulary words, short quotations, or other passages from or features of the text that interest them or that elicit a strong response. They record the word, quotation or brief passage, either verbatim or in paraphrased form. In the right-hand column, (which we have labeled "From Your Mind") students record their reactions, feelings, interpretations, or other responses to the text segments/features they have selected. How does the double-entry journal help students? Some examples: To react to a writer's main idea, topic development, argument, etc. To keep track of their learning during question and answer sessions To look at specific lines and passages for clarity of meaning To interpret a line of poetry or to decide how they feel about a character (words, actions, etc.) To explore a topic or idea. (By being asked to explain what specific words or phrases mean, students will be able to reference reasons and evidence to support their views, their understandings.) If you like this cover design, you can find it on other notebook interiors! Search on our brand name 'SmARTly Bound' to find the same cover design on other interior formats. Cover image colors may appear slightly dissimilar on different computer screens than final printed version.

In this post-apocalyptic novel from Newbery Medal-winning author Robert C. O'Brien, a teen girl struggling to survive in the wake of unimaginable disaster comes across another survivor. Ann Burden is sixteen years old and completely alone. The world as she once knew it is gone, ravaged by a nuclear war that has taken everyone from her. For the past year, she has lived in a remote valley with no evidence of any other survivors. But the smoke from a distant campfire shatters Ann's solitude. Someone else is still alive and making his way toward the valley. Who is this man? What does he want? Can he be trusted? Both excited and terrified, Ann soon realizes there may be worse things than being the last person on Earth. Use it yourself or give it as a gift to someone special and make them smile. 8.5 by 11 inches.  By the authors of the acclaimed Introduction to Rubrics Major growth of interest in keeping journals or diaries for personal reflection and growth; and as a teaching tool Will appeal to college faculty, administrators and teachers One of the most powerful ways to learn, reflect and make sense of our lives is through journal keeping. This book presents the potential uses and benefits of journals for personal and professional development—particularly for those in academic life; and demonstrates journals' potential to foster college students' learning, fluency and voice, and creative thinking. In professional life, a journal helps to organize, prioritize and address the many expectations of a faculty member's or administrator's roles. Journals are effective for developing time management skills, building problem-solving skills, fostering insight, and decreasing stress. Both writing and rereading journal entries allow the journal keeper to document thinking; to track changes and review observations; and to examine assumptions and so gain fresh perspectives and insights over past events. The authors present the background to help readers make an informed decision about the value of journals and to determine whether journals will fit appropriately with their teaching objectives or help manage their personal and professional lives. They offer insights and advice on selecting the format or formats and techniques most appropriate for the reader's purposes.
